TESTS POINT TO WAYS TO COMBAT FATIGUE IN POULTRY FLOCKS

Tired feet? It can happen in the poultry flock, too says Denver D. Bragg, poultry specialist at VPI.

Bragg passes along some news from various research stations which indicates that there may be two or three good ways to combat fatigue in caged layers. Rutgers University reports that fatigue is definitely related to vitamin D and calcium levels in the diet, and that an increase in calcium in the diet will reduce, if not entirely overcome, the trouble.

Sorry to hear that Mrs. Addie Tanner is back in the hospital for treatment. Hope she will soon be well enough to return home.

Mrs. Lyle Moore attended a family reunion at Brookneal on last Sunday.

Mr .and Mrs. Tom Davidson and children spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bondurant, Sr.

University of Maryland scientists report excellent results by placing a relatively firm, but flexible, plastic pad on the floor of the cage of birds showing the effects of fatigue. According to these reports, the birds recover within a week with no change in the diet.

The Maryland scientists feel that nature may have intended the bird to rest upon the whole foot, with the ball of the foot and toes supporting the bird's weight. They believe that in a typical cage, the toes are not used at all much of the time; and instead of the weight being distributed over the entire ball of the foot, the weight rests upon a straight, narrow line with the bird's feet and legs subjected to strain and stress, much as a person might encounter if he stood on a ladder with soft-soled shoes.

Ultimate Give Away

Eventually, of course, unless something is done to halt the trend, there will be a program which will give away the company sponsoring it and the network it is broadcast over. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

COMING:
TRUCKS THAT DO THE NEXT BEST THING TO PAVING EVERY ROAD IN AMERICA!

Imagine a truck ride so smooth and cushioned that fragile loads can travel the worst "washboard" roads with ease. Imagine a truck ride that virtually eliminates shimmy and wheel fight, cuts side sway on curves, makes steering far steadier and easier, keeps drivers far fresher. Imagine a truck ride that permits higher safe cruising speeds, more trips per day with all kinds of cargo over every type of road surface. Imagine a ride that keeps up to 78% of all objectionable road shock and vibration from ever reaching the driver and cargo, a design that sharply reduces twisting and fatigue forces on chassis, cabs and bodies, that keeps trucks young for extra thousands of miles. / Soon you won't have to just imagine such a ride. You can try it for yourself in the trucks that do the next best thing to paving every road in America—new Chevrolet trucks for 1960. You'll see what happens when Chevy's truck engineers design a whole new line of trucks around a whole new kind of torsion-spring suspension. These trucks are new from the ride on up—with wonderfully roomier cabs, brawnier frames, style that's fresh as sixty and more! Don't decide on any new truck till you see the newest of all.
